

CONTRIBUTORS

Randall P. Donaldson (Ph.D., The Johns Hopkins University) is Associate Professor of German at Loyola University Maryland. His work in German-American studies to date has centered around the radical journalist, Robert Reitzel. He is currently working on a supplement to Dieter Cunz' landmark volume, The Maryland Germans.

Gary Carl Grassl was born in Omaha but spent the years 1934 to 1950 in Germany. He was awarded the Order of Merit of the Federal Republic of Germany by Bundespräsident Horst Köhler for his work in German-American history. He published The First Germans in America and initiated the commemoration of the 400th German-American Anniversary in Jamestown and Williamsburg, VA.

Armin Mruck (Dr. phil., Georgia Augusta Universität Göttingen) is emeritus professor of history at Towson University and guest professor at the Carl von Ossietzky Universität, Oldenburg. His research interests focus in particular on German resistance to Hitler and Polish-German relations. Dr. Mruck is the author, with Hannelore Grimm, of Deutsche Lebenswege zwischen Diktatur und Demokratie (2007). He is co-founder of the university partnership between Towson University and the Carl von Ossietzky Universität, Oldenburg and currently serves as Second Vice-President of the German Society of Maryland.

Hans A. Pohlsander (Ph.D., University of Michigan) is a native of Germany but a long-time resident of the United States. He is professor emeritus of classics and religious studies at the University at Albany, State University of New York. His principal publications are Helena: Empress and Saint (1995), The Emperor Constantine (1996), National Monuments and Nationalism in 19th Century Germany (2008), and German Monuments in the Americas: Bonds across the Atlantic (2010). He contributed "Adolph von Steinwehr: A Neglected Civil War General" to Report 45 (2004).

Rev. Joseph S. Rossi, S. J. (Ph.D., Catholic University of America) is a member of the Society of Jesus and the Professor of American Catholic Life and Thought in the Department of Theology at Loyola University Maryland. He has degrees in sociology, theatre, film criticism and history, the history of the Catholic Church, and theology. He is the Resident Scholar at the International Catholic Organizations Information Center at United Nations Headquarters in New York. He has published two books and many articles on Catholics at the UN and other topics in American Catholic Church history. At present he is writing a book on contemporary Catholic Non-Governmental Organizations at the UN.

Marcel Rotter (Ph.D., University of Wisconsin, Madison) is an Associate Professor of German at the University of Mary Washington. His interest in exploring print propaganda began while growing up in East Germany and continued during his doctoral studies, where he examined changes in the motifs of fire, blood, and flag in twentieth-century German poster propaganda. His other research includes comparisons of propaganda of the belligerent nations of the First and the Second World War, the influence of utopian ideals of German immigrants on Midwestern communities, the relationship of text, image, and urban space in Weimar Germany, and the pedagogical implications of visual studies.

Horst Schirmer (M.D., Albert-Ludwigs-Universität Freiburg), is a Baltimore physician. His father was Max Schirmer, an aerodynamic physicist who helped design the propellers and rudders for the German airship Hindenburg. As a young boy Dr. Schirmer was often aboard the Hindenburg with his father. He describes flying with the ship as an unforgettable experience.

Kimberly Staub is a 2009 graduate of McDaniel College in Westminster, MD. She served a year with AmeriCorps after graduation and began work on a Master's degree in history at Virginia Tech in fall 2010.

Thomas Thornton (Ph.D., The Johns Hopkins University), like Henry Wood, earned his

B.A. from Haverford College and then studied in Germany, at the University of Tübingen. He received his doctorate in German in 1953. In subsequent years he moved between academia and government service. In the latter he specialized in foreign affairs and held senior positions in the State Department and on the staff of the National Security Council, while teaching part-time at universities in the Washington area. Since leaving government service in 1982 he has been associated with the Johns Hopkins University as an adjunct professor. Dr. Thornton has published extensively in both the German and political science fields.

Don Heinrich Tolzmann (Ph.D., University of Cincinnati) served until his recent retirement as Curator of the German-Americana Collection and Director of German-American Studies at the University of Cincinnati. He served as President of the Society for German-American Studies and has published widely in the field. Currently, he is Book Review Editor of German Life, Curator of the German Heritage Museum in Cincinnati, and Historian of the Steuben Society of America as well as the German-American Hall of Fame.

